SPECIAL SESSION.

Council Meets to Consider Sewerage Again—A Change of Base.

Council met in special session last evening with Councilmen Healy, Pratt, Johnson, Simson, Glaze and Stone present and his honor Mayor Allen in the chair. The meeting was called to consider the sewer question. The city commissioners were allowed the privilege of putting down a pipe in the alley north of Second street between Main and Walnut streets to relieve the main and Walnut streets to relieve the county jail of the nuisance. They made connection with the Topeka avenue sewer which extends at present to the Occidental hotel.

A motion was made to construct a sewer on Second street from Main to Lawrence and south to First to connect with the Topeka avenue sewer. The motion lost on a vote of seven to two.

The vote seemed to be the result of Mr. Dyer's remarks that putting in pieces of sewer which brought relief and they would not want to pay for sewerage by districts.

Mr. Pratt thought that the remarks were not applicable to the question as the proposed extension was for the benefit of Main street and not Second street and Lawrence avenue.

Healy thought sewerage by small districts should be stopped and work commenced at once on a general system.

The mayor stated that some difficulty had been found in getting right of way in one of the mains decided upon at the last meeting. To this was added some difficulties found by the engineer in fall and flow of the river.

The city engineer stated that the flow in the river at the proposed outlet was one hundred feet in one and one-fourth minutes. He thought a better outlet could be gained by going down the Santa Fe right of way. He thought also that the mains should go down to Levy street, a half mile south of Harry and then turn east and join at the Santa Fe right of way which would give some service to Franklin avenue district where there are several hundred houses desiring sewerage facilities.

Stover moved to reconsider the plan adopted at the last meeting for running three main sewers to the river. The motion carried and Stover moved to adopt Mr. Herring's plan and for outlet on Santa Fe right of way.

Healy opposed the motion, stating that the outlet would be in Chisholm creek, which was backed up a half mile every time there is a rise in the big river, which would foul the sewerage being taken away. By going down Main street the outlet would be in the river at a better point. For the east part of the city he favored going down the right of way to Hydraulic avenue, then south to the river.

Buckridge favored either the Santa Fe right of way outlet or the Hydraulic avenue main.

Mayor Allen said fall is of more importance than money. Fall more important by far than money. Better to adopt the plan to get the most fall.

Dyer—Before council votes on this. Hearing plan they out to take into consideration the legal aspect of the case. It is necessary if this is adopted to let the contract of the whole system.

The city engineer thought the plan would call for a great deal of work in his department.

Healy—The motion don't mean anything. We would accomplish nothing by passing it. We would Mr. Dyer?

Dyer—Nothing at all.

Stover—Well, make a better one then. Buckridge—We can't do any more. The law points are looked up.

Dyer—I don't think so. I would like to know what you want, sewerage, the plan adopted then I will know what to look up. I don't want to look after five hundred different plans. It is necessary that some members will be dissatisfied no matter what action is taken.

Stover—I think we want to settle on an outlet, then see about paying for it.

Mayor Allen—Think the most important thing to know the difference. In the fall. This is the first thing to settle.

Mulvey—Down the Santa Fe we can have a fall equal to that in the city which is five and a half feet per mile. In three of the mains we can get the same fall but not in the other two.

English—It can't be true that we get the same fall for the water in the river is sluggish.

Mulvey—The level don't show it.

English—Level or no level I know there must be a less fall. Water runs down hill and it don't run at that rate from Lawrence to Hydraulic at the river.

Healy—I know more about this territory than any of you. I have been over every foot of land for twelve years. The river has a good fall.

Stover amended his motion to make main outlet to run down the Santa Fe right of way from Harry to South line of section three, and thence direct to the river south.

The amendment was withdrawn after some debate and the vote on the original motion to run down the right of way to Hydraulic avenue then go direct south if so recommended by the city engineer, showed English in the negative and nine in the affirmative.

The city attorney was instructed to employ counsel to assist him in looking after legal points.

Healy said that the city attorney should pay his assistant but by general consent it was decided that the city should pay the assistant.

Mr. Pratt stated that on the 7th of June at the trades display the council would be expected to meet at 10:30 to join the procession in case.

At this moment the council again took up the sewer question and Healy thought that arrangements should be made for going north of Seventeenth street to the old parking house. The sewer district should be extended to Twenty first street.

The territory was extended to Twenty second street between Lawrence and Fourth avenues.

THE CHANGE.
Last evening the long expected change in the city marshal's took place. About 11:30 the officers commenced to arrive, shortly afterwards the three police commissioners took their seats, and then a few spectators filed in and leaned upon the railing in front of the judge's bench. At 12 o'clock the retiring marshal, W. W. Haynes, handed over the keys and other insignia of office to the commissioners with the remark that he hoped the gentlemen would have success with their new administration. For himself, he said that while he did not want to cause the force the least bit of trouble, he was going to have a good time for the night and intended to leave town tomorrow.

The badge was then given by Dr. Martin to the new marshal, Tom McNamara, and the police were asked to give their support to the new officer. The roll of the force was called; Haynes and a few of his friends ran down stairs, the police went off to their respective beats and so the change was made.

Tom McNamara, the new marshal, needs no introduction to the people of Wichita, for he has lived here for the last twelve years. He has served the city as police officer, detective and special watchman and has throughout proved himself an able and valiant officer, and a high minded, worthy man.

It is stated that other changes in the force will be long before made.

THE FUNERAL OF CAPT. GEORGE F. PRICE, U. S. A.

On May 20, 1888, at 4:30 p. m., at Fort Elliott, Texas, the last sad tribute of respect was paid to the remains of the late Captain George F. Price, U. S. A. On that date the funeral ceremonies took place and his body temporarily interred until cold weather will permit of removal to his late home at Newburg, N. Y. And to the readers of the EAGLE who have not witnessed a military funeral a brief description may not be uninteresting, and as it will have much interest for his many friends in this city, I will attempt a short description of the ceremony.

Since the death of the late Captain Price the flag of the garrison has been at half mast, and as far as possible, military duties suspended. At 4:30 o'clock p. m., the hour appointed for the funeral, the troops of the garrison were paraded, the center of the escort in front of the quarters of the late captain where the remains were lying in state. The last farewell having been said and the lid of the casket fastened down, the pall bearers bore the casket (draped with the flag he loved so well) containing all that remained on earth of their beloved captain from the building. The remains were received by a "pistol salute" from the escort and by an appropriate air from the musicians. The body was borne past the escort and placed in the hearse. (The army hearse is a gun carriage.) The commander of the escort having placed everything in order, formed the cortege in the following manner for the march to the country.

The musicians, the escort, consisting of the captain's old troop "E" 5th cavalry, two companies of the 24th U. S. infantry, cavalry, surgeon and chaplain; the hearse containing the remains, escorted by the twelve pall bearers, six commissioned officers and six non-commissioned officers. Immediately in the rear of the hearse followed the late captain's private horse in mourning equipage, the mourners consisting of Col. and Mrs. Jocelyn, Mayor Upham, with the officers of the post and of the late captain's regiment (wearing the assigna of mourning) and accompanied by two companies of the 24th U. S. infantry; the civilian employees of the post, and citizens from Moberlie, who, although their acquaintance with the deceased had not been of long standing, had learned to respect him.

The cortege formed in line and put in motion, the musicians playing the funeral march, the escort with reversed arms marching in slow time. Sad and solemn sound of music slowly and drearily drags the march past the quarters of the late captain, under the shadow of the drooping flag, and then on to the free prairie, the boundless ocean of the rest, that for so many years had been his home, and destined for time to be his resting place.

Arriving at the cemetery the line is formed facing the vault, the escort at a solemn strains of music, the remains are brought and placed over the vault; the music having ceased, arms are brought to a carry, and the coffin is lowered into the vault, after which the escort is brought to the position of rest.

The chaplain reads the impressive burial service; then the military command—carry arms; with blank cartridges; load! The three volleys are fired, and as we are silently leaving the cemetery we hear the sound of sleep, go to sleep, and then go to sleep.

At the last note of the trumpet the musicians play a lively quickstep, the procession moves in quick time, and upon returning to the post the flag is found flying at its usual place and again is resumed the duties of life.

W. FOR FORGERY.

A young colored lawyer C. M. Smith was yesterday arrested upon the charge of forgery placed first in the city prison by Officers Williams and Calvert and afterwards committed to the county jail, in default of $800 bond, by Justice Walker.

He was arrested while waiting for the payment upon a check of $120 which he had presented at the Citizens bank. The paper was signed M. Crusebenk and was a rather bunglesome piece of forgery. Smith had about a week before presented at the same bank a check for $30 made payable to "A. W. Williams or order" and signed with the name of W. E. Stanley. This work was rather cleverly executed and he managed to have it paid when presented. It was this success that no doubt led to the venture that caused his arrest. It was stated last evening just after Smith had been up before Justice Walker, that there were evidently other papers of a similar character about and developments would soon be forthcoming. It was discovered that Smith had on deposit in a bank of this city about $400; the amount was immediately garnished and thus the bank will not come out the loser.

Smith is the only colored lawyer in this city and one of the few in the state. He came here about six months ago, opened an office on the third floor of the Scott-Eckert building on North Main, but has not had an eminently successful professional career. He had prepared himself for the practice at the University of Michigan, and is about twenty-eight years of age.

THE PLANETS FOR JUNE.

Mercury continues as evening star during the month. It is in conjunction with the moon on the 11th and reaches its greatest eastern elongation from the sun on the 12th. Some persons have the mistaken notion that there is a known planet between Mercury and the sun. Mercury's movements are disturbed by some unknown force, and astronomers, observing this disturbance, were led to think that a planet within Mercury's orbit was the cause. No such planet has been recognized. The ring of matter, or whatever it is, that causes the bright cone of light, called the zodiacal light, seen after sunset in April, has been hinted at as the cause of the perturbations in Mercury's movements.

Venus lies close to the sun during the entire month, yet crosses the meridian each day a few minutes in advance of the king of day.

Mars, on his way back east, will again cross the meridian with Uranus. The near approach of Mars to earth this year, together with his full disc, makes his ruddy appearance unusually noticeable. On the 21st Mars will be in conjunction with the moon, the planet being 5 degrees and forty-seven minutes south.

Jupiter continues his motion westward, passing from the constellation Scorpio into Libra. Though his declination is decreasing, he will be too far south during the entire summer for close study. About the 15th of May the proximity of the planet to a bright star in Scorpio would have been seen by even a casual observer. Jupiter is leaving the star to the eastward now, but will pass it again 28 minutes south on his return in September next.

This star, which is a double, and Jupiter with his train of satellites, all in one field of view with the telescope, make a splendid sight.

Saturn is leaving us, not to present himself in favorable position for study until late next fall. At each annual return from his hiding place in the sun's rays the face of his rings will present to us an increasingly smaller angle until, when the edge of the rings is seen, Saturn will be at only a line of light, in place of the rings will be visible.

Uranus transits with Mars on the evening of the 6th. It is a little farther south from Mars than when they crossed the meridian together May 5. It can be distinctly seen with the naked eye if one knows just where to look for it. It can be easily found with an opera glass. Few persons now living will see this planet on its return to the constellation Virgo, where it is now found. It takes it eighty-four years for it to make its journey through the stars.

Neptune, if seen at the first of the month would appear nearly in the same line with Venus, but its distance beyond is greater than the mind can grasp. Alone it plods its wearisome road.

The sun's path for the month is in Taurus and Gemini. It reaches its farthest point north a few minutes after 6 o'clock, on the evening of the 30th, and at once takes up its march southward. Though now he is poured on the northern hemisphere on the 30th day of June than on any other day of the year, it is not the hottest, for the reason that for several weeks after this date more heat is added during the day than escapes during the night. The total amount of heat is thus increased, and continues to increase until the days and nights are more nearly equal in length. Hence our hottest weather is in July and August, after the sun has gone far toward the south.

The moon will be at its nearest point to the earth two days before the full, and hence will give more light and appear larger than when farther away.

THE RATES.

The railroads seem to be having a picnic in entertaining the people with rates for St. Louis and Chicago. The rates now going around the streets with continued cut rates. As reported last evening the Frisco for the St. Louis convention gives a rate of $9.04 round trip, Santa Fe the same; the Rock Island and Missouri Pacific with statements they will knock the $9.04 rate off the boards.

The Chicago rate is down to $12.50 and many threatenings that it will be reduced and some again claim that it will be raised to $15.65.

CLARK-FARNUM.

E. Judson Clark and Laura C. Farnum were married yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, 336 North Topeka avenue, by the Rev. C. F. Cady, of New Windsor, Ill., an uncle of the bride.

Brink and wife, took their places beneath a large and handsome wedding bell, when, in a few choice and well directed words, they were made man and wife.

The groom is a resident of Pratt, Kan., being connected with the Wichita & Eastern railroad. The bride is well and favorably known in this city, having resided here for the past five years, and is one of Wichita's most charming daughters. The bride was attired in an elegant toilet of brown silk, trimmed with cut amethysts, velvet, and lace. The only ornaments, the groom wore the conventional black.

ALPHA GALLOWAY, Secretary.

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Last night a most pleasant surprise was arranged by Mrs. Henry Bolte for her husband on his fiftieth birthday. A party composed of the following friends—Mr. and Mrs. Peter Getto, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bissman, Mr. and Mrs. John Gribble, Mr. and Mrs. Heyman, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Werner, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Bruhn—gathered at their elegant home on South Water quite unknown and unexpected to Mr. Bolte. The time was then spent until after midnight in social intercourse, and many good stories were told while the excellent refreshments, which Mr. Bolte had prepared, were served and enjoyed by the guests.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

Last night a distressing occurrence was reported at the stable of the motor line, in the north part of the city. The little child of Mr. McClain, the engineer of the motor line, was attacked by a dog and badly lacerated about the face and body. The child, it seemed, was playing in the street near Sixteenth street, and was attacked by the dog. As soon as the child was rescued a physician was summoned and it was found that the left cheek had been almost torn off. The dog was once before bitten a child. It was killed by Mr. McClain.
